

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

All Out of Proportion

Washington, Feb. 19. FROM THE press of the country, which, for political purposes, he so long and persistently maligned and misrepresented, Mr. Harold Ickes has been pretty well drenched with praise since his highly dramatized resignation of Thursday. Perhaps, this proves false some of the charges made against the newspapers by Mr. Ickes. Perhaps, it proves some other things about the press, at any rate, as in the case of the late Mr. Hopkins, the eulogies seem slightly overdone.

FOR EXAMPLE, the press dwells almost unanimously on Mr. Ickes' "integrity." One would think that either he was the only honest man holding a high public office or was more honest than other honest men. Neither of these things is true. Mr. Ickes, of course, is completely honest in money matters, as are most men. But he isn't honest enough to be fair; nor honest enough to avoid misrepresentation of his opponents, nor honest enough to justify the designation of "Honest Harold," as though his honesty were of a quality superior to that of the ordinary honest man. One could go back over Mr. Ickes' record and speeches and find proof of this. However, in his attitude toward Mr. Pauley he is absolutely right. Mr. Pauley ought not to be confirmed and Mr. Ickes' testimony has—or should have—pretty well ruined his chances. Also, Mr. Ickes was right when he characterized as the "rawest proposition" he ever had made to him, Mr. Pauley's proposal, (denied by Mr. Pauley) that if the Government "laid off" the suit against the idle-water oil owners, they would contribute $300,000 to the Democratic campaign fund.

BEYOND doubt, this was an outrageous proposal which any honest official would reject. But it should be recalled that Mr. Pauley at that time was collecting money for Mr. Roosevelt's fourth-term campaign and that he had been put in by Mr. Roosevelt as the party treasurer. And it is worth noting that Mr. Ickes' resentment of this "raw proposition" did not impel him to publicly denounce Mr. Pauley at the time. Perhaps, in the middle of the campaign that was too much to expect of him. Anyhow, it does seem that if Mr. Ickes and Mr. Pauley had not fallen out we would never have heard of this incident, which Mr. Ickes kept quiet about for nearly two years, though it would have fitted in better with his "Honest Harold" reputation to have expressed his indignation without delay.

IN THIS connection it is interesting to note that conspicuous among the few papers which did not editorialize Mr. Ickes was the New York left-wing daily from which eulogy was most to be expected. Instead of praise, this radical journal, whose hero is Mr. Henry Wallace, was severely critical of Mr. Ickes, stressed the fact that up to a few months ago he and Mr. Pauley had been quite close, intimating that Mr. Ickes' motives in denouncing Mr. Pauley were not pure.

WHO WOULD WANT ANOTHER?

A report that President Truman told some close friends that he would rather not run in 1948 has drawn a hasty and horrified denial from Robert E. Hannegan. The alarm of the Democratic national chairman is entirely justified. Mr. Truman's influence with Congress is almost non-existent as things are.

What is left of it would vanish completely if the word got around that he was planning to retire at the end of the present term. Furthermore, Mr. Truman is the key figure in Mr. Hannegan's efforts to hold the Democratic party together and bring it successfully through the elections of 1946 and 1948.

However, it would not surprise many Washington observers to learn that Mr. Truman wishes he had never moved into the White House and that he would cordially welcome a chance to move out again.

Mr. Truman, it will be remembered, never ran for the office. What has happened in the year since he was catapulted into it can hardly have made him any fonder of the job. It has been one headache after another, each worse than the one before. At the moment he is so beset by troubles that he could be forgiven for wondering why anyone in his right mind would want to be a candidate for President.

With the best intentions in the world, Mr. Truman finds himself in a terrible mess. Reconversion is hampered by strikes, his legislative program has been discarded by Congress, his party following has split wide open, his advisers are divided on policy and nobody likes his appointments.

Perhaps Mr. Truman did not say that four years of this sort of thing will be enough for him, but if he didn't the thought surely appeals to him strongly.

THE WHEAT ORDER

In protesting against the presidential conservation order requiring the milling of more flour from wheat, the milling industry is speaking from experience. Philip W. Pillsbury, president of the Pillsbury Mills, says farmers will be the losers.

Experience after World War I, showed that the adverse effect of dark bread lasted for ten years and hit the farmers hard. People cut down their bread consumption and never thereafter resumed their pre-World War I rate of buying of the staple. That was a contributing cause of the gigantic wheat surpluses which wrecked prices. Under consumption can be encouraged again if consumers have no choice but to eat a type of bread they do not like.

There could be no harm in looking into the contention of several Congressmen that there is enough wheat in the world without forcing America on an unsavory diet. This country, which has been generous far beyond any instance in history, should not take a step from which it may be ten years in recovering if it is not necessary.

OPA is now four years old, and is no longer referred to as a cute little rascal.

PERJURY AND POLITICS

The Pauley case reveals exactly why the Truman Administration is so determined to keep these political plums in existence, and how it proposes using them. Pauley was to become, first, the Undersecretary of the Navy, and then Secretary, because he was politically important to the Democratic Party; he showed how the oil interests could be "shaken down" for more than $300,000 contributions by a manipulation of the administrative oil policy.

The other Federal jobs would follow the same pattern. They will be placed where they "will do the most good"—not for the American people, of course, but for the present leadership of the Democratic Party.

This is fundamentally dishonest. It can only be excused and defended by public statements which are also dishonest.

So with a host of other public affairs. The Pearl Harbor inquiry came close to the Roosevelt administration. Actual perjury has not been charged against any of the witnesses—yet the layman who reads the conflicting and discrepant testimony can hardly escape the conclusion that some of those who testified under oath deliberately lied about one point or another.

Our foreign policy has been so misrepresented and distorted in the official utterances that those who seek the truth must rely on the "leaks" which gradually develop after each session, and on the more truthful statements of some foreign governments.

News of some of the "deals" made as long ago as at Yalta is still trickling out. We now know how untrue was the earlier impression so carefully bolstered, that there were no "secret deals" with Russia. There were two of them, both improper, and both confirmed by our government only reluctantly; first, the promise of letting Russia veto anything she didn't like about UNO; second, the promise of giving her land which belonged to someone else.

The precedence of telling bland falsehoods about foreign affairs traces back to one of the major fabrications of the generation—that of the Atlantic Charter. This piece of fiction was bragged about officially for years before the late President Roosevelt finally revealed the truth—that there was no Atlantic Charter, only a publicity stunt.

Currently some classic story-telling is being done about the British loan. It is officially described as a loan when the strong probability is that it will be merely a gift; as bearing regular and reasonable interest when the rate is less than our own government must pay to raise the money, and when England can default almost at will.

Secretary Byrnes recently said England had made a "pledge" to wipe out her trade barriers. What is really promised in the agreement is not to wipe these out, but merely to talk them over.

Not long ago President Truman heatedly denied that the loan was for the purpose of helping finance National Socialism in Great Britain. The real point, of course, is not our purpose in extending such a loan, but England's in receiving it; and the agreement imposes no restrictions on how the leaders of the Labor Government of Great Britain use the money. If they seek to use it for socialization, what is to stop them? They are further favored by having neither interest nor principal to worry about for the whole period of their administration—the next five years.

In our home affairs, fabrication and falsification continue to be the themes. The Truman Administration boasts of its "fight against inflation" when its policies are directly inflationary and its methods, if permitted to continue, cannot fail to bankrupt the nation.

A most misleading picture of our financial plight was recently delivered by the President himself when he said in a public message: "We are rich!"

He talks economy, yet plans much the greatest spree of extravagant over-spending in all peacetime history.

His budget is a fraud and a delusion—pretending to be in balance when it is at least 30 per cent "in the red," pretending to reduce the national debt when it greatly enlarges it; pretending to head off inflation, when it is the most inflationary program ever officially handed to Congress.

Instances of untruths being used to feather the political nest of the Democratic Party could be multiplied endlessly. Their combined effect is to stifle the voice of the American people in their government by deceiving them as to facts.

Ickes did his nation a major service in turning the spotlight on such practices.

demands restricting Chungking's actions there.

The Senate confirmed President Truman's friend and adviser, George E. Allen, as a director of the RFC, but one committee held up the nomination of his naval aide, Commodore James K. Vardaman, Jr., to the Federal Reserve Board and another decided to call more witnesses in the case of Edwin W. Pauley, Under-Secretary of State Acheson headed demands for prompt construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway as essential to defense and industry.

The Great Game of Politics

Pauley now were not entirely devoid of personal spite. At his press conference Mr. Ickes, characteristically, denounced this paper as untruthful and its correspondent as "psychopathic and untruthful."

BUT what this journalistic proposition (along with Mr. Ickes) of the New Deal, the CIO and the "common man," has to say against Mr. Ickes is not very important. Whatever his motives he has performed a public service in revealing the "raw proposition" and thus obstructing the confirmation of Mr. Pauley. The breast-beating self-righteousness of his letter of resignation and his obvious effort to hurt Mr. Truman do not detract from that fact. Nor do they tarnish his record for competency and honesty as an administrator. However, nothing in the situation justifies the extravagant laudation which insists that his departure is a terrible political blow to the President and an irreparable loss to the nation.

THE FACT that Mr. Ickes has put on a typically gaudy show should not make us lose all sense of proportion. It should not, for example, cause to be overlooked the injustice to Mr. Truman of his catty remark that he was expected to commit perjury for the party. No one suggested or expected him to do any such thing and "Honest Harold" knows it. The truth is he is a violent and vindictive man, with a recognized talent for insinuation and real skill in the use of words. But he is not a political leader and he has no personal following. The effects of his departure are being greatly exaggerated. Undoubtedly, before the Pauley business is over he will let off another blast or two. And in the future when he sees the opportunity he will burst into print. That is his game and he plays it very well.

SUCH incidents occur in the best administrations. They do not justify the journalistic hooting that everything is "coming apart at the seams." But, in a few weeks the whole Truman-Ickes-Pauley affair will seem far less important than it seems now. The chances are that it will then appear that while Mr. Ickes contributed largely to the highly desirable Pauley defeat, he did not otherwise rock the earth. Nor is it likely that the Pauley rejection will hurt Mr. Truman very much more than he owed. The drawing of his friend, Mr. Eddie (Loving) Acheson, from Mr. Roosevelt.

to their old jobs, or better ones, with us

They knew, when they left for war, that their jobs with the telephone company would be held for them. And now they're trooping back, these men and women, to their old jobs with us, or even better ones.

What's more, they all get the pay increases they would have got if they hadn't gone to war.

In addition, many veterans not formerly with the company are working for us today.

And we must hire many hundreds of girls—experienced or inexperienced—for countless jobs brought about by the expanding service.

MEANWHILE, THE SHOW MUST GO ON.

Telephone service must be maintained even while it is improved, and we are determined to let nothing bar us from restoring the pre-war standards of service and from introducing you to even finer standards to come . . . just as soon and as fast as we possibly can.

Russo read a confession that was made by Hottensen who said that he did not mean to do any bodily harm to Kraftcheck, but just wanted to scare him.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, who was also on the bench just before sentence was pronounced by Judge Keller, said as a matter of information to Hottensen's attorney—Sidney Cadwallader, of Yardley—that testimony in juvenile court recently involving the Hottensen children, was "the most horrible that has ever been in the Bucks county juvenile court."

STILL—"First in the Hearts of His Countrymen"

By JEANNE SAKOL

It's February and the American people pause a moment to remember. For the 214th anniversary of George Washington's birth will occur on February 22nd.

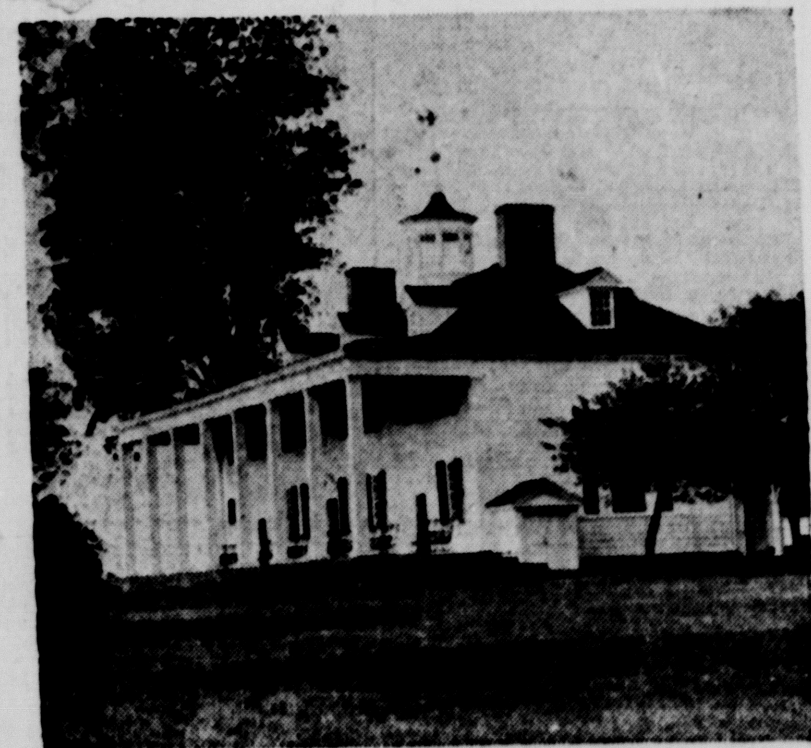

We are most vividly aware of Washington's memory during the month. Yet, throughout the year, mute reminders of him are all around us.

First memorial ever erected to the man who, after over two hundred years is still first in the hearts of his countrymen, was the towering Washington Monument in the nation's capital. Begun in 1848, it was not until 36 years later that the final stones were laid at the top of its 555 feet of height. The great stone face carved in the side of Mount Rushmore in South Dakota as part of a huge scenic memorial to a group of America's presidents, still in the making, is the most significant project along this line in recent years. And, in the period between, numerous houses where Washington lived and worked have been restored and preserved as historic landmarks for generations of Americans to come.

Known as the "Shrine of Democracy," is the head of George Washington, sculptured on the granite face of Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills of South Dakota. The bust is proportionate to a man 465 feet tall.

In New York City, the Washington Arch, built in 1895 to commemorate Washington's first inauguration, was the starting point of the Eighty-second Airborne Division's recent triumphant home-coming parade.

Down the Potomac is Mount Vernon, Washington's home, with much of the original furniture preserved intact for interested visitors.

Washington Monument at Cherry Blossom time. Students and tourists flock to the capital to visit this historic landmark. In normal times the number often reaching as many as a million every year.

George Washington Memorial Tower, Alexandria, Va., was built with the contributions of 2,500,000 Freemasons from all over the country.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF COLORS

—by—
Anna L. Galizia, Dress Designer

Colors are one of the most important items in women's clothes. Many women, yes, even those best dressed, make grave mistakes in choosing their right colors or color combinations, for they usually follow the newest color vogue instead of finding what agrees with them. Some people seem to think that black and white are not colors, but the designer knows that they are. The smartest and richest color is black. It is called the color of night, for it is mysterious and dignified. There are many shades of black as there are in white. For example, white, called the color of innocence, is not always pure white. Dead white is what is known as the whitest of white. Then there is that off-white or gray white, what grandma called in her day tattle-tale gray. Beige or tan white is known as ivory.

We women owe it to ourselves to see that we are wearing the right shade of colors at all times. Not only will it be pleasing to the opposite sex, but our mood depends, more than you realize, on the colors that surround us.

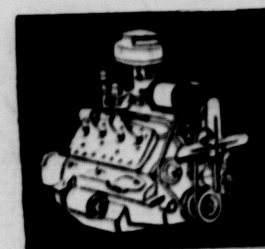

Why should some colors compliment us and not others, or vice-versa? For one important factor, color is not always chosen by the color of hair, eyes or complexion. Absolutely not! It is chosen to agree with our personalities. What do I mean by that? Simply notice about you. There's plain Jane looking very stunning in red. She is drab, quiet and shy. She was wise in choosing red, red is a warm and vivid color and no matter how quiet and shy poor drab Jane is, red speaks a lot for her. On the other hand, Betty is a high-keyed person and should stick to black. Black tones down that high tension. Never, never wear black if you feel sick, morbid and low in spirit, because you will look very, very drab.

Why wear a color unless it does something to you? Do not wear what the other woman wears. It might look good on her, but what will it do for you? She is one type of personality and you are another. So much for color psychology. I am very sorry that space is limited and can not tell you more about every shade of color.

Come in and let me design and create especially for you, your Easter suit or coat. 426 Logan Street. Phone 2880.

WOMAN COMMENTATOR WILL ADDRESS P. T. A.

K. Clark, First Correspondent to Enter Warsaw, To Be At Torresdale

ON 26TH OF FEBRUARY

TORRESDALE, Feb. 19 — Katherine Clark, well-known news commentator, who was the first correspondent to enter Warsaw after the Russians recaptured the city from the Germans, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association February 26, in All Saints Episcopal School, Frankford avenue and Fitter street.

KATHERINE CLARK

Miss Clark returned from Europe last September after covering the battle-scarred continent for two months for a Philadelphia radio station and a broadcasting system. She did several broadcasts from Berlin.

Daughter of an army officer, and wife of a newspaperman, Miss Clark has travelled extensively. She often accompanied her father to stations in the British Isles, continental Europe, Hawaii, China, Japan, and the Philippines. For two years she lived on Corregidor.

Miss Clark began her career in journalism as editor of a weekly at Smith College. She was also the college correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune. After leaving college, she worked on the cable desk of the Panama American in Panama City, the rewrite desk of the Press Association, the radio division of the Associated Press in New York; and made shortwave broadcasts to South America and England.

SAVING GRACE

Wonder what to do with that old, worn raincoat? Just cut it down to Junior's size for an adorable cape that'll keep him warm and dry come what may. Schoolchildren love raincoats—keep their books dry, too.

Lady—don't throw your old, frayed tablecloths away. With a few snips of your scissors, they become charming bridge or luncheon cloths. Or, if you prefer, you can cut them down to decorative mat size.

For a warm and cozy St. Valentine's Day, make adorable heart-shaped carnations. So easy to make—just stuff heart-shaped pieces of felt or wool with cotton. Very ingenious in bright, bright red.

You can get longer and better use from your brooms, mops, etc., by doing this simple little thing. Keep a stiff ten cent brush handy and each time you use your brooms and mops, brush out the dirt.

KITCHEN HINTS

Of course, you can't throw left-overs away—but you can make them appear fresh again. Simply wash leftover cooked vegetables in hot, then cold water to destroy the "leftover" flavor—use cold in a tempting salad bowl.

Never need worry about unexpected guests when you have these articles on hand... pancake flour, cup of cooked rice, canned soups, canned fruits, cake mix and fudge mix. A wonderful meal can be fixed up in a jiffy from foods like these.

TAKE A HINT

Winter weather dries hands—and so does water. Even if your hands are work-worn, nobody need know if you cream them nightly, slip on loose cotton gloves and let the cream ooze into your skin while you sleep.

How often has wet weather forced the family to go dripping into the house—when rubbers or galoshes had been forgotten? For such emergencies, keep a pair of slippers or shoes and hose in the downstairs closet for every member of the family.

Keep your baby happy and amused while you work or rest. Save odd-size boxes to fit one in the other as a "nest" for the baby to play with by the hour—taking them apart, building with them, etc. Junior will love it.

You can make your towels conversation pieces by designing them yourself. Just buy floral washable fabric, cut out the flower designs and applique on your towel sets in the bathroom and in your kitchen.

Here's a safe way of washing and drying your "Sunday best" fragile china and glassware. Cover your drainboard with a cloth or soft paper and then there's no danger of their slipping and breaking as they would on porcelain.

Are you one of the many afflicted with that incurable "always losing umbrellas" disease? You've got a pretty good chance of getting back your umbrella if you sew a "Please Return" tape with your name and address on it.

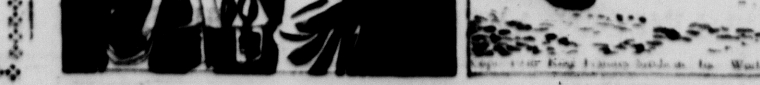

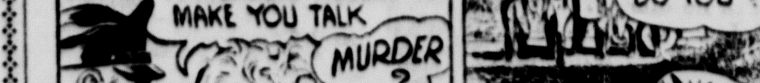

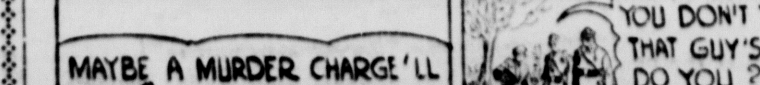

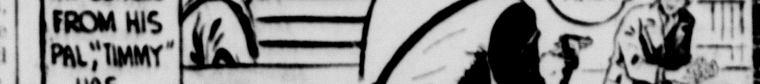

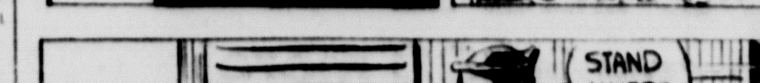

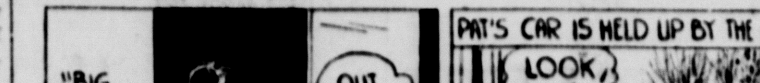

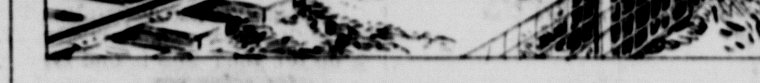

There's no need for you to set aside one whole day for washing. To avoid "washday," merely soak each day's accumulation of soiled clothing overnight; rinse in the morning and iron a few pieces at a time.

Cut stale bread in 2 1/2 inch slices, and the slices in squares, oblongs or circles. Scoop out the centers with a fork, leaving bases 1/4 inch thick. Fry in deep hot fat until a delicate brown. Drain on unglazed paper. Fill with creamed vegetables, meat or fish.

Chocolate Cream Pie

2 tblspns shortening
6 tblspns flour
1 1/4 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 tsp salt
2 egg yolks
1 tsp vanilla
2 tblspns confectioners' sugar
2 egg whites
Baked pie shell
Melt shortening. Add flour, milk, chocolate (cut in pieces), sugar, and salt, and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from the fire and add beaten egg yolks and vanilla. Pour into a baked pie shell. Cover with a meringue made by beating the confectioners' sugar into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F) 15 minutes or until a delicate brown. Whipped cream may be used instead of the meringue.

One way that the recovery of the men is speeded up is by giving them generous amounts of meat in each day's meals. Because meat contains all of the necessary protein substances (known as amino acids), it is considered one of the best sources of protein. What's more, there are few foods which contain as much protein in an average serving as meat does.

Jessie Alice Cline, home economist, points out that meat is also a popular food with the men because of its appetizing variety. In order to give plenty of variety, all different kinds of meat are used. At one of these hospitals where meat is served to the patients three times a day—a week's allowance of meat will include fresh pork, beef, lamb, ham, bacon, liver, sausage and cold cuts.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. E. G. Yeomans

Father, teach us to number our days that we may have hearts of wisdom. Hear us in our asking, that we may receive of Thee and be truly wise.

Lead us in Thy way Eternal. Seeking Thee, may we surely find Thee. Remind us that Thy way is the way of Peace and that life with Thee is the joyous and full life.

Create in us clean hearts, O Lord, that we may love good and hate evil. Renew right spirits within us, that we may honor Thee with all our deeds. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

FAMILIES NEED A PLAN FOR A WISE SPENDING OF FUNDS

By Sara Jane Reish,
Assistant Home Economics
Representative

Unless families budget their money and keep a close watch on their spending, they can look to an unprofitable financial year. Why? Because there is the desire and need for farm and home improvements and there is a market geared to fulfill these wants gradually.

A budget means a spending plan. It is important to keep in mind that actual budgets are never alike and no two families need exactly the same spending plans. Neither will a family's income likely be spent according to a "standard" budget. The standard budget is only a guide in working out an actual family budget.

The family budget is an estimate of the family's income and spending for the year and leads to intelligent spending. It does not spend the money for the family, but it should help the family to spend its money for what it wants most and to get a dollar's worth for each dollar spent.

There are two ways to make a budget. The "beginning" family might try this method: Estimate the probable income, divide it among the principal needs of the family, then shift the amounts until all the essentials are included. Such a method emphasizes living within the family's income.

For the family who has been operating for some time, this procedure is suggested: List the actual items for which the family would like to spend money, including more items than can possibly be provided with the available income. Arrange the items in the order of their importance, estimate as accurately as possible the probable cost of each item, estimate the income for that period of spending, and compare the two estimates.

Eliminate the less important items and bring the expenditures in line with the income. That gives a budget based on intelligent choices.

The budget will require a careful comparison of items for which money is spent. Not only must the first costs be considered, but also the economy of operation and the length of service a piece of equipment will give, or the real value of an item for which money is spent. A budget must be kept in mind throughout the year.

RAMBLERS' HOPES FADE OF CHANCE FOR PLAY-OFFS

Franklin Wins and Retains Lead of League in A Firm Grip

FINAL SCORE, 34 TO 31

Harriman Keeps on Heels of Franklin by Defeating
Edgely Team

The Ramblers' hopes of getting a playoff berth in the Bristol Youth League faded last night as the league-leading Franklin team defeated the Fifth Ward aggregation, 34-31, in a hard-fought game on the Mutual Aid floor.

In the second game of the night, the Harriman team kept on the heels of Franklin in the battle for first place by trimming the Edgely A. C. five, 53-31.

The Franklin quintet held the lead most of the time in its engagement but at the close of the third quarter, the Ramblers were one point behind, 25-24. In that third session, the Rams had counted 19 points while the leaders were held to five.

Close guard of "Bumps" Costantini gave Franklin the victory. The league's leading scorers were held to a lone field goal in the first half and a field and two fouls during the second half to give him but six points for the night, a low figure for a lad who has been averaging about 20 points a game.

The winners exhibited a fine brand of teamwork with the points being equally divided. Four of the regular players hit the cords for seven points each while the fifth player had six counters.

"Ed" Capriotti paced the Harriman team's win for 23 points. He scored 11 fielders and one out of four fouls. His club had the lead from the start and in the first half led, 27-16. Joe Lenti scored four double-deckers during the first half melee.

"Freddie" Hibbs was high man for the township boys with 10 points, one more than Butterworth. Franklin Edgely FT Tot.

BUNNIES TO PLAY FINAL GAME AT HOME TONIGHT

Bristol High Five Will Meet
Trenton Catholic On Local Floor

TWO GAMES BOOKED

Bunnies Are Now In The Midst of A Winning Streak

Bristol High will play its final home game of the season tonight when it meets Trenton Catholic. When in varsity and junior varsity contests, the Jayvees' game will get under way at 7:30 o'clock.

The Bunnies are in the midst of a winning streak, having won its last three games in a row and four out of its last five. The only club that has beaten the locals in the last five games has been Hamilton High, another Trenton team.

Early in the season, Trenton Catholic smothered Bristol in both varsity and junior varsity contests. The Trenton team, led by Dick Giedlin, has one of the best quintets in Jersey and have been scoring decisive wins over most of its opponents.

Coach Tom Campion is satisfied with the playing of his proteges and will start the same recent line-up of Pindar, Sottile, Letinski, Mama, and Natale. He has been breaking in several new players in the line-up and feels certain that the Trenton team will be held down to a low score.

The junior varsity is sporting a better record than the varsity but even Coach Stackhouse's boys felt the wrath of the Catholic team in its first meeting and went down to defeat by a large score.

Led by "Kenny" Martin, the junior varsity quintet is determined to halt the lickings being handed them by Jersey teams and bring a triumph to the local school.

DID NOT FIND FIRE

When the door of a furnace was blown open yesterday afternoon by an oil burner, firemen were called but were unable to locate the house because of incomplete directions. It was later found that the furnace trouble was at the farm house formerly owned by the late George Peterson, Emilie Road, Bristol Township. There was no fire. Firemen drove around the area but were unable to obtain definite directions. The call was first received by Edgely Fire Co., and then telephoned to Bristol.
